ABOUT THE STATE.

A non-sectarian Sunday-school was organized in Guilford Center recently.

The Black River Woolen Co., Lufellow, has declared a dividend of $7 on each share of stock.

In spite of the warm weather, the ice which was cut in Saxtons River last week was about fifteen inches thick and of very good quality.

Out of 41 cases for divorce entered on the docket of Caledonia county court only 10 were granted. One case where a divorce was sought by the couple, have been married forty-eight years and the court refused to grant the divorce.

Miss Agnes King, who is suffering from injuries received while at work at the Queen City Cotton mill, Burlington, two weeks ago, when her hair was torn from her scalp by the turning shaft in the shafting, is rapidly recovering from her injuries.

At a meeting of the Shaftbury Baptist Ministers' association held at Shaftbury Tuesday, about fifteen were present. Papers were read by the Rev. A. E. Foote, of Fair Haven, E. M. Bartlett, of Brandon, and E. M. Douglas of West Haven. The members outlined the winter's work for the respective churches.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the Vermont Bee Keepers' association will be held in Burlington January 12, immediately following the meeting of the Vermont Maple Syrup Makers' association, and Vermont Dairywomen's Association.

Mrs. John Carmody, of Rutland, is ill of diphtheria at the home of her father, Bartholomew Penton, in Randolph. The house is quarantined and all care has been taken to prevent the disease from spreading.

Much attention has been attracted recently by the dead English sparrows on Main st., Brattleboro, every morning. The number one morning was unusually large and during the forenoon many sparrows were seen to fall from flying flocks to the ground. The birds are victims of poison. English sparrows drive away song birds and for that reason various people put poison where they will find it. The birds alight on telephone wires and fall off during the night. It is a case, however, where the remedy is said to be worse than the cure as it is impossible to exterminate the sparrows and the dead birds on the street are a nuisance.

The twenty-seventh wedding anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs. J. K. Kilbourn was celebrated in Schoolhouse hall at Barre Monday evening. Mr. Kilbourn is pastor of the Barre Congregational church and a delegate from Vermont to the Methodist conference at Mendocino Falls, East Barre, West Barre, Barre Center, and Monroe, N. H. Supper was served by the local church, after which a reception was held which was attended by more than 200 people. A purse containing $100 was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Kilbourn by the Rev. A. F. Eldridge, of Mendocino Falls, on behalf of those present.

Lost Arm by Log Rolling on It.

Charles Shortleaves, of Middlebury, who has been helping get out pulp wood in Lincoln, was the victim of a painful accident Saturday. While assisting to form a pile, a thirteen-foot log rolled from the top and fell some four feet on one of Mr. Shortleaves' arms, crushing it just below the elbow. William Smith, who was working with him, assisted the wounded man to the office of Dr. W. J. Brandon, where the arm was amputated. The workmen made up a purse of over $20 for the unfortunate man.

Great-Grandson of Ethan Allen Dead.

Ethan Allen, a great-grandson of Gen. Ethan Allen of the Revolution, died last Thursday night at his home, 850 St. Nicholas ave., in New York. Mr. Allen had been in ill health for some years. Mr. Allen was born in New York in 1845 and was educated there. He married Ella Perkins, a daughter of the late Major H. Perkins, of Washington Heights. Two children survive them, Ethan Allen, Jr., and Mrs. Ida Sperry. Mrs. Allen died about four years ago. Until 1898, when he retired, Mr. Allen was a member of the New York Athletic Club and other social organizations. In politics he was a republican.

The Widow's Ruin.

"Do you really believe in love?" asked the Widow.
The Colonel started. He had been wondering how he could find out the exact amount of her fortune before taking the plunge.
"Oh, yes," he said. "Certainly, certainly."
"How refreshing!" sighed the Widow.
"Love?" queried the Colonel, with a splendid show of tenderness.
"I meant how refreshing to find a man who believes in it, especially a man with so much experience of it."
"I have always believed in it," replied the Colonel simply. His eyes became slightly misty; they were not strong.
"I wonder you never married," observed the Widow.
She was looking down. He used the opportunity to note the luxury of the room. Even if ruin had exaggerated, she could not be.
"Because," he said, slowly, "I have wanted to find the woman who matched me ideal."
The Widow shook her head. "I'm afraid you will remain a bachelor to the end of your days," she remarked.
Now he might do it. To be or not to be. Courtesan or no.
"But I have found her," he murmured hoarsely.
"Really?" She was vastly flattered.
"How very interesting! May I ask?"
"It is yourself," promised the Colonel, pulling forward his chair a little that he might be more conveniently seen by her hand. "Will you take a glass, please?"
"Ruth," corrected the Widow.
"I beg your pardon, Ruth. Will you will you marry me?"
"Yes," answered the Widow.
He dropped on to his knees with some difficulty, and brushed her cheek with his moustache. It tickled frightfully, but the Widow did not laugh.
"I will do my best to make you happy," promised the Colonel. "I ought to earn you, though, that I have very little beside my pension."
"True love is better than riches. We can afford to face poverty together," "Xen," the Colonel agreed. "At any rate, it is a comfort to me to reflect that you need never fear privation."
The Widow sat up. "By the way," she observed, "I suppose you know that," is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure that she has dandruff to amount to anything, to nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that "and it is the result of a germ growing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy a cause, and you remove the effect," is the leading principle. Send for a sample to The Herpicide Co.

Rickett & Wells, Special Agents.

In the event of my marrying again I lose all my property.

The Colonel gasped. The expression on his face betrayed him.

"Thank you," said the Widow. "I invented that to test you. One has to be careful, doesn't one?"—London Daily Mail.

Two Old Remedies.

Two of the oldest and best remedies sold are Allcock's Pains Plasters and Sandreth's Pills. They are celebrated household necessities. For sprains, rheumatism, pains in the side, back or chest, or any suffering that is accessible from the exterior, Allcock's Plasters are perfect, while for regulating the whole system, invigorating the liver, and cleansing and purifying the blood Sandreth's Pills are unequalled.

Spelled Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard of W. 34th street, New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin troubles. She writes: "I had salt rheum of eczema for years, but nothing would cure it until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25c. at Red Cross Pharmacy.
